THE WORKINGMEN'S PARTY. - The so called workingmen's party met last night in the base ment of the County Court House. There had been a general cell for a mass meeting to hear their candidates, but the whole number present was thirty-two, twelve of whom were white. T. I. Edelir, presided and the secretary was Walter Penn, who read the call and reported that Allen C. Harmon was present on special invitation to address the people.

A colored voter at this jrancture asked for in termation concerning the workings of the club and said that he wanted to know the result.

He was silenced by slang epithets, but the in quiry was again asked by William Burke, fath er of the colored public school teacher, who de manded the reading of the platform, which after some delay in scarching for it, was pro duced by Mr. Harmon, and read. Wm. Burke replied-That is sufficient.

He then, however, wanted to know how many members were in the club, and desired to in a very critical condition. No hopes are enterhear the names read.

Mr. Penn in stentorian voice proclaimed that they were a host, but on being questioned could only produce a roll which contained forty-one names. Mr. Harmon was then introduced and said cents. he did not come to make a speech bat just to show himself as he was specially invited to come. He said he reluctantly accepted the dent and druggist of Alexandria, was in the nomination and would now decline if they saw city to day. He has been for the past three fit. He then commenced a more extended years clerking for the enterprising drug firm of

One cures rheumatism and the wanted mathematical statesmen, advocating the cash policy, and scoring it into the Gazette for its extracts from the speech of Gov. Thomas, of Maryland. He then recommenced his Maryland arithmetic lesson, which elicited the replys of [oh,] [whew] [ta'k] and the whole meeting seemed convulsed with laughter. He spoke at great length and evidently wearied the patience of his hearers. Upon the conclusion of his speech calls were made for John Calhoun Motter, who declined, saying he had to go out to-night.

W. L. Penn then took the floor and struck some hard blows at Dr. Johnson and John B. Syphax, declaring that the republican party was gone up, and charging the Legislature with fraud in passing the Moffett punch bill.

Upon taking his seat one of the absent speak ers came in-ex Scavenger Hannibal King-who was invited forward. He delivered a lengthy introductory apology, but it could be seen that he was brim full and piping. He denounced President Hayes and his civil service reform, and said the President was going down from this movement. One thing, however, he did see, and that was there were not white men enough in this party; he wanted them to show them selver. He wanted to know how many had jined to-night.

The reply was twe. He said he knewMr. Harmon, but did not know

Mr. Henry. The temperance virtues which the speaker displayed in the radical convention that nominated Dr. Johnson for Mayor had been blotted out, for he raved terribly about the punch bill, styling the whole late Legislature as teetotaler fools and Tories of Virginia. He did not want taxation whether the State debt was paid or not. He then delivered a funeral oration over the republican party, and closed calling upon all those present to come forward again and sign over for fear of a mistake.

Richard Dogan moved to adjourn, but John Calhoun Motter, who had reconsidered his previous declination to speak, was given the floor, the audience having dwindled down to a good baker's dozen. His speech was a long abuse of the Colored Men's Conser vative Club, slurs upon Virginia, and a badly expressed laudation of the State of Maryland, which, he said, he hails from. He abused the democratic and republican party, and styled the colored people foo's for not identifying them selves with him.

The meeting then adjourned.

ACCIDENTS. - An accident occurred to a cat tle train on the Virginia Midland Railroad at Warrenton Junction yesterday. Several car loads of cattle had been left standing on the "Y" at that noint, while the train went on to Warrenton. Upon its return the engineer was unable to stop the train until it had run into the stationary cars, smashing one or two of them, and killing some cattle.

Another accident happened on the main line of the same road, near olelvor's station, to a freight train, yesterday morning. The train ran off the track at a point where it was being repaired, and several cars were badly smashed. No damage was done to any of the employees by either accident.
